

Regardless of the mental, physical and emotional abuse these mothers have endured, they possess an inner radiance. These mothers were often made fun of, put down and humiliated by their abuser (the duck) who now has custody of their children.

A continuation of the "Ugly Duckling" story is that the mother swan has lost custody of her child to the duck, who mentally and possibly physically abused her. What do you think the duck is doing to the children now?

The Magnet; The Message

Beautiful Mothers

The swan was chosen as the symbol to represent these mothers because swans represent the grace and beauty that these abused mothers have. When these mothers are viewed from the perspective of the story.

“The “Ugly Duckling”

Others can gain an understanding of what these mothers have gone through.

The swan magnet was developed especially for non-custodial mothers who have lost custody of their children to their children’s abusive father. The significance of these magnetic pins is that non-custodial mothers who wear them can easily identify with other mothers in the same situation.

The goal of this project is for women going through this situation to identify and reach out to each other.

This magnetic pin is a symbol for non-custodial mothers and the grace and beauty they share.
